Description of Property:

5724 Marquis Court, Mobile, Alabama is described to be a one story tan brick house with white trim and black shutters. The house is situated on the north side of the cul-de-sac. There is a drive way on the east side of the house and a large tree on the west side of the house. In front of the house is a mailbox with the numbers 5724 on the side. Taylor's room is the most eastern bedroom in the house and is situated immediately behind a living room.

AFFIDAVIT

I, Stuart B. Woods, first being duly sworn, depose and state that :

1. I am a Special Agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), and have been so employed for the past 13 years. I am presently assigned to the Mobile, Alabama Office of the FBI .

2. In January of 2005, Undercover Agent One (UCA1) met and had a conversation with RICKIE REDELLE TAYLOR at a gun show being held in Mobile County, Alabama. In April of 2005, UCA1 attended a second gun show being held in Mobile County, Alabama and again met and had a conversation with TAYLOR. During this conversation, TAYLOR invited UCA1 to attend a Sons of Confederate Veterans Meeting to be held on May 5, 2005 and invited UCA1 to shoot weapons with him at a private range.

3. On May 5, 2005, UCA1, accompanied by Undercover Agent Two (UCA2), attended the Sons of Confederate Veterans Meeting. After the meeting, TAYLOR invited UCA1 and UCA2 to shoot weapons with him at a private range. TAYLOR told the UCA's they can bring what they want to shoot but they can only fire "short bursts". "Short bursts" is a phrase used to describe a brief pull of the trigger on an automatic weapon that when done will only fire two to four rounds versus a sustained pull which will fire many rounds. The short pull is used to conceal the fact that an automatic weapon is being fired.

4. SA Mary Tkacik conducted a records check of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and advised that there is no record of RICKIE TAYLOR having a license to possess an automatic weapon under the National Firearms Act.

4. On May 14, 2005, TAYLOR gave the UCA's directions to the private range which is located at 9102 Dahlem Road in west Mobile County, Alabama. TAYLOR arrived at the range with versions of an AR-15 rifle, an AK-47 rifle and an H&K-91 rifle. Before firing the weapons, TAYLOR asked if there was "any law enforcement or federal anything like that" at the range and then stated "I don't want another Ruby Ridge or anything like that." TAYLOR then told the UCA's to only fire short bursts. The instructions were given to conceal the sound of automatic weapons fire. TAYLOR fired all three weapons in the fully automatic mode and allowed the UCA's to fire all three weapons in the fully automatic mode. TAYLOR told UCA2 that he bought the AR-15 rifle from a felon. TAYLOR showed UCA2 that the AR-15 rifle had a filed down serial number and a sawed-off eleven and a half inch barrel.

5. On June 2, 2005, TAYLOR invited UCA2 to his residence located at 5724 Marquis Court, Mobile, Alabama. While at the residence, TAYLOR showed UCA2 a plastic silencer that fits on a Ruger model 10/22 .22 caliber rifle. TAYLOR stated that when the silencer was installed, the rifle report was very quiet. TAYLOR told UCA2 that he bought the silencer while he was in New Zealand. TAYLOR stated that it was sold as a silencer over the counter in New Zealand.

6. On June 18, 2005, UCA2 went to TAYLOR's residence located at 5724 Marquis Court, Mobile, Alabama. TAYLOR showed UCA2 his room that he rents from the owner of the house. UCA2 observed TAYLOR retrieve a belt fed .30 caliber machine gun from a crate located in the closet of the room. UCA2 also observed a safe in TAYLOR's closet. It is believed that TAYLOR conceals the illegal AR-15, AK-47 and H&K-91 in the safe. UCA2 observed a gun case in TAYLOR's bedroom which contained long barreled legal weapons. TAYLOR and UCA2 then went to 9102 Dahlem Road and fired the .30 caliber machine gun on automatic mode. TAYLOR and UCA2 returned to 5724 Marquis Court and TAYLOR returned the machine gun to the closet in his bedroom.

7. Based upon the information set forth in this affidavit, I believe that there is sufficient probable cause to believe that within the bedroom rented by RICKIE REDELLE TAYLOR located at 5724 Marquis Court, Mobile, Alabama there are illegal automatic weapons in violation of Title 26, United States Code, Section 5861 and evidence of illegal weapons possession which includes the following:

.30 caliber belt fed machine gun
AR-15 converted to fire in the automatic mode
AK-47 converted to fire in the automatic mode
H&K-91 converted to fire in the automatic mode silencer
documentation of the illegal conversion of weapons to automatic mode parts kits for future conversion of weapons to automatic mode receipts regarding weapons purchases pictures of illegal weapons.

SPLC says local flag leader honored by Klan

▶ Linda Sewell denies association with Klan or any white supremacist group

By JOE DANBORN
Staff Reporter

A leading watchdog of hate groups said Tuesday that a Mobile woman who heads a state Confederate history group was honored this year by the Ku Klux Klan following a neo-Nazi-sponsored demonstration in Montgomery.

The woman, Linda Sewell, in turn denied the allegations and accused the Southern Poverty Law Center's Intelligence Project of acting on a vendetta against her and other preservationists. Sewell said she was not affiliated with the Klan or any other white supremacist group.

"I personally believe that in order to get respect, you have to give respect," she said. "And you don't have to like another culture's symbols or culture or heritage, but if you want respect for yours, you have to have respect for theirs."

The Southern Poverty Law Center, based in Montgomery, monitors, labels and occasionally sues white supremacist organizations such as the Klan and the Aryan Nations. In a segment of the "Intelligence Briefs" posted on their Web site Tuesday, Southern Poverty officials allege Sewell and her husband attended the protest outside Southern Poverty headquarters Jan. 25.

They claim that at a banquet following the rally, Sewell accepted a certificate of appreciation from the American White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Pictures provided by the Intelligence Project depict a woman identified as Sewell holding a framed certificate with her name on it. The cer-

1. To appoint a six to eight member committee to review Civil War and Reconstruction representations at the Museum of Mobile.

2. To undertake a study on how to preserve all historic monuments from being renamed or removed without proper review.

3. Requested the Museum to push Confederate heritage.

4. The Mayor of Mobile would proclaim April as Confederate History month.

From the [redacted] point of view, participation in the SOCV and the Mobile Solution was prestigious and their expulsion apparently stoked a tremendous desire for vengeance. b6 b7C

Since presentation of the award in January, the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan joined Richard Butler's Aryan Nations (AN) and formed a new group called the Aryan Nations Knights of the Ku Klux Klan (ANKKKK). At a realm meeting of the ANKKKK held in southern Alabama on July 5-6, 2003, the SPLC source reported hearing ANKKKK member [redacted] comment, "Morris Dees needs a bullet put between his eyes. There ought to be someone in our group that could do it." Dees is Chief Trial Counsel for the SPLC. Although the information pertaining to [redacted] was publicized in April, 2003, [redacted] continues to blame Morris Dees and actively seek someone to kill him.

[redacted] learned [redacted] was convinced [redacted] was working for the SPLC. The source heard [redacted] make additional comments about the location of [redacted] and [redacted] b6 b7C

[redacted] is referenced in [redacted] an EC, dated 04/29/03, documenting a telephonic complaint received from [redacted] advised he had received four letters which appeared to be threatening in nature. The third letter contained a Chinese calendar depicting animals and said "tastes like chicken". The fourth letter was a photocopy of a black rapper with derogatory information. [redacted] advised he believed he received the letters for one of two reasons; either someone was upset over the confederate heritage agreement with the City of Mobile or someone was upset over the forced resignation of [redacted] from the SOCV. b6 b7C b7E

According to [redacted] also held [redacted] of New Jersey responsible for the photograph depicting [redacted] accepting the KKK award. [redacted] commented [redacted] needed a "a tall tree and a short piece of rope."

[redacted] learned [redacted] hinted to ANKKKK members that he was coming into a lot of money and commented, "what the Klan would do if they came into money." b6 b7C b7E

On 8/14/03, [redacted] advised SA [redacted] Montgomery RA, he learned [redacted] were planning to attend the Ten Commandments Rally scheduled for 08/16/03 at the Alabama State Capitol in Montgomery, AL. [redacted] presumably would attend the rally in support of Roy Moore, Chief Justice of the Alabama Supreme Court, who was ordered to remove the 5,300 pound ten commandments monument he had placed in the rotunda of the state judicial building. The SPLC has taken legal action against Judge Moore in this matter. The Montgomery RA has excellent liaison with the SPLC and will maintain contact with them regarding this investigation and the safety of Morris Dees.

Indices show numerous references to [redacted] in Mobile file [redacted] involving subjects [redacted] ANKKKK members [redacted] accompanied [redacted] to the white supremacist rally held outside the SPLC in January, 2003. At this rally [redacted] attempted to disguise themselves and covered their vehicle license plates to prevent viewing. 'Civil Rights' Group Retains Alabama Leader Tied to Klan

One of the nation's largest Southern heritage organizations has decided to keep its Alabama state president in office despite revelations about her secret associations with hard-core white supremacists. The group's national leader said the woman had done "nothing to deserve to be removed."

The Intelligence Report's Spring 2003 issue carried a photograph of a clumsily disguised Linda Sewell, head of the Heritage Preservation Association (HPA) of Alabama, with her husband Jim at a neo-Nazi protest outside the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC) in Montgomery on Jan. 25. The story also included pictures of an undisguised Sewell at a post-rally luncheon receiving a "certificate of appreciation," embellished with a Klan blood drop symbol, from Bradley Jenkins, the imperial wizard of the Aryan Nations Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. Standing right behind her at the ceremony was Rick Spring, a security official with the neo-Nazi Aryan Nations who once served 12 years for bank robbery.

Smack in the middle of Confederate Heritage Month this April, the well-known Mobile, Ala., activist found herself confronting tough questions from local newspaper and television reporters. Sewell at first denied everything, saying the allegations were part of a smear campaign orchestrated by people who resented her success in making Confederate heritage politically palatable in Mobile — something attested to by the Confederate banners hanging downtown during Alabama's Confederate Heritage Month. "We're not racist," she said of the HPA (see also related story, p. 8). "We're not supremacists. We're simply a heritage preservation group."

But Sewell's story changed by the day. Initially, she denied she was the person in the photographs and told a reporter that she had been at a Robert E. Lee birthday function that day. Told by the reporter that Lee's birthday had come more than a week earlier, she then agreed that she had been in Montgomery Jan. 25, but at a different rally entirely. After friends identified her to Mobile reporters as the woman in the SPLC photos, Sewell, who had already seen the pictures, agreed that indeed she was. But she now claimed that she was never at the neo-Nazi luncheon and had only accepted such a certificate from another organization, on another day, not in Montgomery. She also told one television station that the certificate she received had not carried any Klan symbol. But, as WPMI-TV reported, the photos "clearly show Sewell accepting an award with ... a KKK logo."

Ultimately, Sewell bowed out. On April 22, Ben George, Mobile's leading neo-Confederate activist, sent an E-mail message to Mobile Mayor Mike Dow and other city officials announcing that Sewell had resigned from the Atlanta-based HPA. (During the entire brouhaha, Dow and the many other politicians who had worked with Sewell on heritage issues declined to condemn her.) George also wrote that both Sewells had resigned from the local chapter of the Sons of Confederate Veterans heritage group, which George leads. "I would have rather they renounced hate and their associations with hate," George told the Report, but all in all, "for them to resign was the best thing."

Apparently, the HPA's national president, P. Charles Lunsford, disagrees. "Linda Sewell is still the President of the Heritage Preservation Association of Alabama," Lunsford wrote in an E-mail to the Report some six weeks after the scandal exploded in the Mobile media. "She has done nothing to deserve to be removed." He followed up a few days later, claiming that Sewell "had no idea" there would be Klansmen at the post-rally luncheon.

Lunsford did not address Sewell's participation in the rally, which was hosted by the neo-Nazi White Revolution group and took place under flags decorated with swastikas, iron crosses and other neo-Nazi symbols, was attended by a variety of convicted criminals, and included the leaders of major hate groups like the neo-Nazi Aryan Nations. He also did not address the fact that Sewell had disguised herself to attend, and in fact covered up her car's license plates to avoid detection. And he didn't mention that Sewell accepted the award immediately after a tirade from Jenkins at the podium about "Jews, the niggers, the Mexicans, the mud race."

Like many "heritage" organizations, the Atlanta-based HPA, which claims members in 49 states and six foreign countries, portrays itself as promoting "heritage, not hate" — a phrase coined by Lunsford himself, who told the Report that HPA is "simply a civil rights group." The group's Web site pointedly disavows racism. "We do not foster hatred, nor do we tolerate those who do," it says.

Whether or not the Heritage Preservation Association tolerates haters, Linda Sewell does not appear to be sticking around. Sewell's one-time ally, George, says that she and her husband — who has been a local leader of the Council of Conservative Citizens hate group — have left public life, vowing never to be heard from again.

SPLC says local flag leader honored by Klan

▶ Linda Sewell denies association with Klan or any white supremacist group

By JOE DANBORN
Staff Reporter

A leading watchdog of hate groups said Tuesday that a Mobile woman who heads a state Confederate history group was honored this year by the Ku Klux Klan following a neo-Nazi-sponsored demonstration in Montgomery.

The woman, Linda Sewell, in turn denied the allegations and accused the Southern Poverty Law Center's Intelligence Project of acting on a vendetta against her and other preservationists. Sewell said she was not affiliated with the Klan or any other white supremacist group.

"I personally believe that in order to get respect, you have to give respect," she said. "And you don't have to like another culture's symbols or culture or heritage, but if you want respect for yours, you have to have respect for theirs."

The Southern Poverty Law Center, based in Montgomery, monitors, labels and occasionally sues white supremacist organizations such as the Klan and the Aryan Nations. In a segment of the "Intelligence Briefs" posted on their Web site Tuesday, Southern Poverty officials allege Sewell and her husband attended the protest outside Southern Poverty headquarters Jan. 25.

They claim that at a banquet following the rally, Sewell accepted a certificate of appreciation from the American White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Pictures provided by the Intelligence Project depict a woman identified as Sewell holding a framed certificate with her name on it. The certificate bears two Confederate battle flags and a Klan logo, along with the explanation that Sewell was being thanked "for all her hard work and dedication to our cause."

Sewell is president of the Alabama chapter of the Atlanta-based Heritage Preservation Association, which absorbed a Mobile group known as Friends of the Flag. Shown the Southern Poverty pictures, she initially denied she was in any of them. She later said she attended a January demonstration at the state Capitol in support of Chief Justice Roy Moore, but never protested against Southern Poverty. And she maintained she never received a Klan certificate.

Sewell's supporters said they found the Southern Poverty report hard to believe.

"That's almost to me like Mother Teresa getting that award," said Saraland veterinarian Ben George, who preceded Sewell as head of the flag group. George confirmed, however, that the pictures appear to be of Sewell.

Charles Lunsford, the national president of the Heritage Preservation Association, said the Southern Poverty charges sounded suspicious. He said he would have to investigate the matter before deciding whether to take action against Sewell.

"We're trying to enforce tolerance, not intolerance. That would be directly opposite of what we're trying to do," Lunsford said.

Mark Potok, who edits Southern Poverty's Intelligence Report, disagreed.

"I don't mean to say that anyone involved in heritage issues is a racist," he said, acknowledging many such people "have perfectly honorable reasons" for their involvement. "But at the political edge of this movement, there are a core of white supremacists."

George said he had hoped to avoid such criticism, and questioned the report's timing.

Along with her husband, Jim — who heads a local Sons of Confederate Veterans camp — and others like George, Sewell has helped establish a détente with city and county officials that has brought about increased acknowledgment of Confederate issues.

Last Friday, Mayor Mike Dow and the majority of the City Council and county commissioners, along with Mobile County school board President Lonnie Parsons and former state Sen. George Callahan, attended the second Annual Dixie Heritage Luncheon at the Radisson Admiral Semmes Hotel downtown. Dow, Commission President Freeman Jockisch and a representative of Gov. Bob Riley's office each read separate proclamations recognizing April as Confederate History Month.

George was especially pleased by what he and others called The Mobile Solution, an agreement that he said led to recent revisions to the city's mission statement. As read by Dow at the luncheon, it now includes the carefully worded declaration, "We respect the dignity and worth of our citizens and value the diversity of culture, heritage and history within our community."

George said he considers that phrase the culmination of three years' worth of lobbying. He and Lunsford expressed hope it would serve as a model for other cities looking to reconcile Southern heritage concerns and racial equality.

City Councilman Fred Richardson, who is black, spoke at Friday's luncheon wearing an African kente cloth over a dark suit, trying to calm what he considered some of the audience's fears.

"The idea that blacks are gaining on them and that they're losing their ancestry is a bunch of foolishness," Richardson said Tuesday.

"It was a lost cause. They lost. They can reenact the battles, but when the battles are over, they're gonna lose. I have no doubt that they had great generals. But none of that is gonna help us."

Richardson, who was listed on the program as Fredrick Douglas Richardson Jr., said he was well received for the second year in a row.

Dow said he considered the luncheon — which included a rousing rendition of "Dixie" with the crowd clapping in time and singing along — a success.

"I felt like, for that hour, we had a coming-together experience," the mayor said. "I felt that the whole tone of the meeting was one of trying to find our common ground and not our differences."

But he also said he was troubled by the Southern Poverty report. "If Linda expresses to me that these are her views, I would be very disappointed in that," he said.

A woman identified as Linda Sewell, head of the Alabama chapter of the Heritage Preservation Association, accepts a certificate of appreciation from the American White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan during a January banquet. The certificate, which shows two Confederate battle flags and a Klan logo, says Sewell earned it "for all her hard work and dedication to our cause." Sewell, of Mobile, denies any association with the Klan. She also denies the picture shows her, although friends said otherwise. At left is Bradley Jenkins, the leader of the Klan group, according to the Intelligence Project at the Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery. Standing in the dark coat at right is Rick Spring, an Arkansas man identified by Southern Poverty as belonging to white supremacist organizations.

Date of [redacted] 10/22/2003

On October 15, 2003, [redacted] date of birth [redacted] Social Security Account Number [redacted] 1222 Highway 43, Saraland, Alabama, 251/679-0370, was interviewed at his place of employment. After being advised of the identities of the interviewing Agents and the nature of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information: b6 b7C b7E

[redacted] is the commander of the local Semmes (Lee-Moses-Dixon) Sons of Confederate Veterans Camp (SCV). [redacted] advised the SCV is not a hate group but rather a group whose mission is to preserve confederate heritage and whose members must be descendants of confederate soldiers. [redacted] made a point of stating that many members were professionals such as lawyers, doctors, and credit company executives.

In August of 2000, [redacted] spearheaded a citizens petition to protest the City of Mobile's removal of the confederate battle flag from the city's logo. With the help of others, [redacted] collected approximately 10,000 signatures on a petition which stated, "This is to say that I have southern pride and will not allow the flag to be banned without a protest and a boycott of Mobile." [redacted] provided the completed petition to Mayor MIKE DOW and was very aggravated to learn Mayor DOW provided a copy of those 10,000 names to the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC) in Montgomery, Alabama. [redacted] stated that he did not believe it was right that 10,000 citizens names could be placed on a possible hate group list just because they exercised their rights by signing a petition. b6 b7C

The SCV has met with the Mobile City Council and mayor in an attempt to reach an agreement concerning the preservation of confederate heritage. [redacted] stated the city promotes tolerance with most groups, including their support of Black History Month and their work with Cuba; however, the city was reluctant to work with the SCV to preserve confederate history. [redacted] advised that the city and the SCV are working on an agreement dubbed the Mobile Solution with a motto of "Everybody Gets Respect."

hate group and strongly indicated the SCV did not want to be associated with haters. [redacted] reiterated to interviewing Agents that the SCV does not associate with hate groups or those who do.

At the time of this negative publicity, [redacted] contacted b6 membership in all groups by mutual agreement. Not too long ago

Approximately two weeks before the vote on Amendment 1 occurred in September, 2003, [redacted] saw [redacted] while attending a meeting of the Republican Assembly Committee in Mobile. [redacted] spoke to [redacted] and asked him if he had disassociated himself with groups espousing hate. When [redacted] indicated that he had not, [redacted] walked away.

[redacted] of the NATHAN BEDFORD FORREST CAMP of the SCV. [redacted] has a violent, radical nature. [redacted] was made the leader because he is perceived as an enforcer by the group. However, [redacted] is actually the vocal leader of the organization. [redacted] helped [redacted] to form the 7th RANGERS, an Alabama militia group.

these rumors in 1995 while he was a member of the TEXAS CONSTITUTIONAL MILITIA. A leader of this group or the MILITIA OF BEXAR COUNTY told him that they had trained with "Muslim units" in the Houston, Texas area.
